All the churches in the Anacostia section held Thanksgiving day services, which were generally attended. At the Anacostia Methodist Episcopal Church, corner of Jackson and Pierce streets, Rev. Charles O. Isaac, the pastor, presided at a prayer and song service at 10:30 o'clock. Individuals of the congregation spoke, there being no regular sermon delivered. Rev. M. Porter Snell of Anacostia preached on the day at the Garden Memorial Presby-terian Church, on Minnesota avenue, at 10:30 o'clock, and Rev. Dr. Miller, the pastor, also spoke. There was a special musical program by the choir, directed by Mr. Edward T. Davis, and the church was handsomely decorated. The Thanksgiving service at the Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church, Washington and Fillmore streets, began at 9:30 o'clock, the rector, Rev. Williard G. Washington Puts on Garb Typical of the Season. Washington was particularly favored by the weather clerk this morning in anticipation of the city's observance of Thanksgiving day. According to the weather bureau the capital is the only city south of the regular November snow area to put on true Thanksgiving-day garb. Even Baltimore has a green Thanksgiving and south of Washington, almost within sight of the Potomac, the fields are as bare of snow as they are during harvest. The only other snow reported on today's weather map fell "over the greater portion of the lake region, New England and the western mountain slopes of Pennsylvania and West Virginia." In the north snow has been on the ground several weeks, and the recent fall has only added an inch or two to its thickness. South of the lakes the air and ground have been prime for a snow fall. The temperature in the whole Atlantic and lower lake region has been from 10 to 25 degrees below the seasonal average. In Washington today, for example, it was 22 degrees above zero at 8 o'clock in the morning, rose to 24 degrees before noon and is expected to pass the freezing point, or, in this instance, the melting point, some time during the afternoon. But ordinarily Thanksgiving day in the District of Columbia would not keep snow on the ground after 10 o'clock in the morning It is possible that this year's adventi-tious snow blanket may last for several days. Even if it melts on the streets and tin roofs today it will lie on the open ground for at least forty-eight hours. the forecast of the weather bureau will prove wholly incorrect. The capital is assured that "the weather will continue fair and cold tonight and Friday in the middle and south Atlantic and east gulf states and partly cloudy and cold tonight in the lower lake region, followed by rising temperature Friday." This temperature will be accompanied by fresh northerly winds to swirl the snow all over the hills of the District and turn autumn into the semblance of winter at least. No reports from near-by observing sta-tions indicate that the Washington snow has extended beyond the Washington city observing district. Indeed, it is believed at the bureau that the whole area covered is less than twenty-five miles square. The snow began to make the city ready for Thanksgiving shortly after midnight, and the fall is thought to have continued for a little more than an hour.

services will be held tomorrow at 2 o'clock at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, Connecticut Avenue Heights, over the remains of Joseph A. Carr, who died of heart disease yesterday at his residence, 2127 R street. Mr. Carr was a lieutenant of Troop D. Rough Riders, in the Spanish-American war.

Lieut. Carr served with distinction in the three hard fights of the Rough Riders, rushing the Spanish ambush at Cervilla, the battle of San Juan hill and confronting the Spanish sortie in the attempt to drive Roosevelt's men from their position. In this last engagement Lieut. Carr was seriously wounded, having been shot through the body near the groin and also in the wound first struck a pearl-handled knife in the lieutenant's pocket, and carried with it a part of the handle, thus making the wound worse. Lieut. Carr was in a serious condition from his wounds when he arrived at his home in this city July 12, 1898. Although frail in physique, and extremely delicate looking, he exhibited the utmost nerve at that time, and it was undoubtedly this quality which enabled him to survive that

HOW THE DAY IS OBSERVED

THANKSGIVING STORIES FROM THE DISTRICT INSTITUTIONS.

Services at Reform School-A Rountiful Feast at St. Elizabeth's-Dull at the Jail.

At the District reform school today Thanksgiving exercises were held in the central hall at 10 o'clock, conducted by Mr. G. A. Shallenberger, the superintendent. After the services the boys were ushered into the dining room, where the tables fairly groaned beneath the weight of turkey, cranberry sauce and innumerable good things. The boys are in fine health, all of them, it is stated, and the present Thanksgiving is one of the brightest the institution has ever known. The dinner was said to surpass in excellence.

During the Thanksgiving services Superintendent Shallenberger read to the youngsters the President's proclamation in regard to Thanksgiving day. He endeavored to impress upon his youthful auditors the meaning of Thanksgiving day and to attract their attention vividly to the reasons for giving thanks as expressed by Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Shallenberger read excerpts from the Old Testament. The boys sang several national hymns, after which the superintendent recounted to them sto-ries of ancient Thanksgiving days, includ-ing the first one celebrated in this country by the pilgrims. At St. Elizabeth's Asylum.

The Thanksgiving day dinner served at St. Elizabeth's Asylum for the Insane was on the customary generous scale of the season at the institution. The inmates and employes partook of the sumptuous fare at noon. For several days the asylum kitchens have presented a busy scene with the force engaged in preparing for the Thanksgiving repast. Over 500 mince pies were baked there, while several barrels of cranberries and a thousand bunches of celery were used to make up the food accompanying the 3,300 pounds of turkey that had been purchased to form the principal dish of the day. Several barrels of cider were tapped and many bushels of apples dis-tributed. When the meal had been prepared it was sent out to the various ward rooms and dining halls to be enjoyed thoroughly by the many inmates and the em-ployes of the inside force. Tonight the first dance of the season will be held in the At the Jail and Workhouse. Thanksgiving day did not interfere with the dull routine of life within the brownstone wails of the District jail. It was stated there today that the prisoners were treated to no extra fare, but received the same substantial dinner which is daily served to them. There were many visitors to the institution, however, and the preachers who are often seen in the corridors talking to the prisoners made their daily rounds

At the workhouse Thanksgiving cheer was as conspicuous by its absence as at the jail. Turkey did not extend its reign to this correctional institution, and the inmates had to content themselves with thoughts of being free when Thanksgiving next rolls around and of contemplating the amount of bird they would then devour. The day was

BUST OF GEN. LEE. Unveiling Ceremonies at Confederate

Veterans' Hall. The unveiling of the bust of General R. E. Lee at Confederate Veterans' Hall Tuesday night was witnessed by a large attendance, and was a delightful aff ir. Miss Virginia Miller, president of the Southern Relief Society, called the meeting to Seventh & order and announced the program. Jus- L Streets. tice Seth Shepard delivered a short but very eloquent address, reviewing the character and services of General Lee, incldentally congratulating the ladies of the Southern Relief Society upon their possession of so admirable a likeness in marble of General Lee, and commended the great work of the society as a charitable organization.

Mr. Thomas Smith of Warrenton, Va., also made a short speech, referring to the military services and Christian virtues of General Lee.

The bust is of white marble in bas relief esting upon a background of dark velvet, inclosed in a handsome gilt frame and case It was unveiled by Miss De Shields of Mississippi the orchestra playing "Dixie. Mr. Wm. A. Gordon, president of the Confederate Veterans' Association, was called upon and spoke particularly of the splendid work done by the Southern Relief Society in looking after the poor, needy and sick in the city, and of the high character of the ladies composing its membership.

At the close of the exercises a dancing reception was tendered the young ladies who assisted last season at the annual Refreshments were served at 10 o'clock.

Drinks Made Him Crazy.

"Your honor, I had two drinks with a friend last night and they made me crazy.' was what Patrick Walsh, a young man with one leg, told Judge Kimball in the Police Court this morning, after being arraigned on a charge of being disorderly on New York avenue northwest last night. A policeman told Judge Kimball that the man was unable to stand up, and when he started to send him to the station house Walsh tore the officer's badge off. Walsh was held on the testimony, and in default of a fine of $10 will be confined for thirty days in the Minor Thefts Reported. Detectives at police headquarters had but little work today, although several thefts were reported. One such report was made by Nathan Block, a storekeeper at 13th and C streets southeast, who told the police that a colored man ordered a sack of flour, worth 15 cents, and a small piece of meat, ran out of the store without paying his bill. Dr. Richard Kingsman of 711 East Capitol street was robbed of a freezer of ice cream, and Michael Connor reported the theft of a keg of beer. The theft of a dozen brooms was reported by Jacob Greenfeld. Released on Bond. Walter Worthington, thirty-four years of age, who gave his occupation as a liquor salesman, was arrested last night near the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and 3d street northwest on a charge of making threats against Annie M. Hodgkins of 102 3d street northwest. At the station house it is alleged, a revolver was found in Worthington's coat pocket. An additional charge of carrying a concealed weapon was thereupon filed. Worthington demanded a jury trial in the Police Court today and
